LAST FULL MEASURE

The Battle of Second Manassas

After the Seven Days campaign Robert E. Lee reorganized his army into, what he called, “commands,” because he could not, by Confederate law, form “corps” or any formation larger than a division. Dividing the army into two “commands,” one under James Longstreet and the other under Thomas Jackson; and the cavalry into a division of three brigades under J.E.B. Stuart; he rested and refurbished the army near Richmond.

Lincoln brought east generals John Pope and Henry Halleck. McClellan showed no signs of renewing the offensive and eventually Lincoln ordered the army withdrawn to Washington. Halleck replaced Winfield Scott as General in Chief while Pope had organized the Army of Virginia of three corps and ordered it concentrated in the area between Warrenton and Culpepper with the intent to move south, a move more easily ordered than executed.

Lee, planning an offensive of his own, sent Jackson’s command to block Pope, and discerning that McClellan wasn’t going to go on the offensive, reinforced Jackson with A.P.Hill’s division. Learning that the Federal IX corps had been ordered to move to the Fredericksburg area, Lee ordered Jackson to strike before Pope did. Jackson, who had a habit of not telling his division commanders what the plan was, stumbled his way to Culpepper, and on August 9th, ran into Nathaniel Banks’ II corps at Cedar Mountain. The Federals attacked and were initially successful, mostly because the Confederates division commanders didn’t know what the plan was. As the Federal attack was losing steam, A.P.Hill’s division joined the fight and pushed the Federals back, advancing to within seven miles of Culpepper.

Gambling that McClellan was indeed being withdrawn and Richmond was not under threat, and feeling the need to deal with Pope before he could be reinforced by McClellan, Lee moved Longstreet’s command to join Jackson. On August 15th, the Army of Northern Virginia moved to positions on the Rapidan River, facing Pope who was concentrated near Culpepper, between the Rapidan and the Rappahannock. Lee’s attack was delayed for two days by logistical problems, and Stuart was surprised by Federal cavalry and nearly captured, in fact Captain Fitzhugh of Stuart’s staff was captured with the order outlining Lee’s plan on his person. Pope, learning of this planned attack withdrew his army north of the Rappahannock. Stuart harassed the Federal movement, raiding Pope’s headquarters on August 22nd, obtaining Pope’s dispatch case. From this Lee learned that divisions of the Army of the Potomac were near at hand, and divided his army sending Jackson and Stuart in a wide sweep north of Pope to move him out his position on the Rappahannock. Longstreet would follow by the same route as Jackson and both wings would strike Pope once he was in the open.

Pope was aware of Jackson’s movement on August 25, but Longstreet was demonstrating on his front as if trying to force a crossing of the Rappahannock. Pope was convinced Jackson was moving to the Shenandoah Valley, and never imagined he might be moving around his flank to his rear. Jackson passed, unopposed through Thoroughfare Gap and into Pope’s rear, reaching Gainesville on the morning of August 26th and moved on to Bristoe Station, 20 miles in Pope’s rear. Here he cut the telegraph and burned the railroad trestle over Broad Run. Jackson’s command had marched 56 miles in two days and was exhausted, but they moved on four miles more to capture Pope’s main supply depot at Manassas junction where they looted all they could take and destroyed the rest. Jackson then moved to wait for Longstreet at Stoney Ridge near Groveton on the Warrenton Turnpike. A.P.Hill took a wrong turn and wound up at Centreville before reconnecting with Jackson above Groveton. Meanwhile, Lee with Longstreet approached the Thoroughfare Gap.

Pope was at Warrenton Junction August 26th trying to coordinate his army when he heard of the raid on Manassas Junction. Besides his three corps, he had
